Society Uses Grant To Identify, Preserve Archival Collections

By Susan Logan

Volunteers of the Delaware County Historical Society have been diligently working to better identify and protect the documents and items held in the Society's archives because of a grant received by the Society. In March 2013, the Society received a grant from the Ohio Historical Records Advisory Board (OHRAB), one of eight made by that board, which the Society is required to use to make our archives more available to the general public. This project will make the archives more accessible to visitors to the Cry-der Historical Center and to Internet users.

The grants are funded by the National Historical Publications and Records Commission (NHPRC), an arm of the National Archives and Records Administration (NARA). The funded projects include organizing and preserving historical records and cataloging and digitizing records for improved access.

Society volunteers are carefully combing through the records and re-boxing them in acid-free folders and boxes. Previously, the papers have (Continued on Page 10)

We Remember Louis Foster

The Delaware County Historical Society lost a dedicated friend with the recent passing of Louis Foster. Louis served for several years as a Trustee of the Society and was Trustee Emeritus, the first person so named, at the time of his death. He was born in Fort Knox, Kentucky, but his Delaware County roots run deep. Among his forebears were the Robinsons, who arrived in the county in 1834, the Smiths, in 1852, the Fosters, in 1859, and the McCarthys, in 1860.

A graduate of The Ohio State University, Louis spent most of his adult life in Columbus, where he served in the Columbus Police Department. He was also a veteran of the U.S. Army, serving for five years in Germany. He came to Delaware with his wife, Marion, after he retired from the police force in Columbus.

Louis was a familiar face to many who visited or volunteered at the Cryder Historical Center as he was a frequent volunteer. He was a diligent researcher, especially in the old newspapers, and was a wonderful source of information about early Delaware. On the Board of Trustees, he brought a strong perspective in favor of the Society's Library and the many visitors to our facilities. He also brought a necessary sense of humor and good timing for when to make the "motion to adjourn."

Society members, volunteers, and visitors all will miss Louis and his dedication to the preservation of Delaware County history.

Where Were You When You Heard The News?

By Brent Carson

History is a continuous, unraveling story of life. Along that journey are events, good and bad, which we remember. Sometimes the memories of a given moment are so vivid that we can recall the details of where we were and what we were doing. Those among us who were born before 1935 would have a memory of where they were when they learned that the Japanese had attacked Pearl Harbor. Other such moments might include the explosion of the Space Shuttle, the assassination of Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr., the attempt on the life of President Ronald Reagan, and the terrorist attack of 9/11.

If you are at least fifty-five years of age, your thoughts might go back to Friday, November 22, 1963 – where you were, what you were doing, and how you learned of the assassination of President John Kennedy.

I was a sophomore at Hayes High School. A student body pep assembly had been held that morning to kick-off the high school basketball season, and many of us were looking forward to joining a car caravan to Columbus to support the team that evening.

Friday afternoon wore on to the last period. In my case, the week ended in English class, team-taught by Mrs. Geasman and Mrs. Geiger. The grammar lesson of the day was diagramming sentences, and the minutes ticked by slowly.

Mr. Burkam, the school principal, broke into our classrooms with the announcement that the President had been shot. It was a frozen moment in time as I recall the gasp which echoed through the room. It was around 2:25 pm., and we sat quietly listening to the radio broadcast for the remaining twenty minutes of class. The end of that school day was unlike any I have ever witnessed either as a teacher or as a student. The only sound in the hallways was of the opening and closing of lockers. A few sat quietly on the floor crying.

Most of us have memories of that day and the three which followed: the capture of Lee Harvey Oswald and then the shooting of Oswald by Jack Ruby, the funeral, the horse-drawn caisson, and the burial in Arlington Cemetery.

This year marks the fiftieth anniversary of that tragedy. I will spend Friday, November 22, in a Hayes High School classroom only a few doors down the hall from the room where I sat in 1963, listening to the news reports. I will relive that history and relate the story to the government classes of Mr. Blackburn.

Trip to Spiegel Grove

Eight members of the Society traveled to Spiegel Grove in Fremont, Ohio, on Saturday, October 12. The group toured the home of Rutherford and Lucy Hayes in the morning. The guided tour of the beautifully refurbished home lasted nearly an hour and a half. After a leisurely lunch, they toured the Presidential Museum in the afternoon. The Hayes Presidential Center was the first presidential library and remains one of the finest in the country.

History of Delaware County Historical Society

Compiled by Steve Shaw

The following is an edited summary of a historical portion of the founding of the Delaware County Historical Society. The publication was titled "Public Opening and Second Annual Pilgrimage Delaware County Historical Museum," and is dated Sunday, May 22, 1955. It was a portion of the pamphlet printed for the Dedication of the Delaware County Historical Museum, which we now know as the Nash House.

"The first mention we have found of an historical society in Delaware County is an article written by D.W.C. Lugenbeel in the Delaware Gazette for August 31, 1909. . . . The Colonization Society was organized in 1832 with Mr. Hosea Williams as president no mention was made of activities or programs of the society.

"Going forward in the article it is written that 'On February 8, 1906 some citizens of the county met at the office of Mr. H.E. Buck and formed the Delaware County Historical and Archeological Society. The following Trustees were elected: Henry Buck, Frank L. Grove, D.L. Ziegler, Joseph Gross, J.L. Smith, J. B. Taggart. . . . Meetings were held every Monday and the last entry of the minutes was made April 26, 1910. The book is now (1955) in the custody of the Delaware County District Library.'"

"Urged by Mrs. Walter S. Cole, a number of persons interested in the history of Delaware County, past and present, met in the old Marlborough Church on October 12, 1947. . . . The constitution was written and the society incorporated in November. On November 17, 1947 the first officers were elected . . . Wilber J. Main, president, Mrs. Walter S. Cole, secretary, . . . Mrs. Edgar Nichols, Treasurer. The organization grew slowly, with much interest in the telling of past history but with no financial backing or foundation with which to acquire a home for the society and/or a place to house the gifts of relics and records it was hoped would come to the society for preservation. A number of papers, records and books were promised to various members for the society at such time as permanent housing would be available.

"In the summer of 1954 Miss Pauline Nash offered her home at 157 E. William Street to the Delaware County Historical Society as a museum. After a number of meetings by the officers and trustees in August 1954 this offer was accepted on an annuity basis. This was made possible by an annual allotment of funds from the County Commissioners, as stated in Ohio law. Work of getting the house in order for a museum was slow, but the enthusiasm of the members never lagged. Now with the opening of a museum nearly eight years after the organization, is the real beginning. The Society has a place to house and display tangible evidences of Delaware County's past. The present must be forgotten- It is tomorrow's past."

Contributors noted were Thomas Graham, Anna Pabst, and Mrs. William Hahnert.

Museum and Exhibits Subcommittee

The Museum and Exhibits Subcommittee has been busy sharing Delaware County's history in a Downtown shop window. Steve Cianelli, owner of the Hair Studio, 33 N. Sandusky St., has graciously made available one entire front window showcase for the Society since the Spring of 2013. The first display was themed on the Great Flood of 1913. Next, we promoted Hayes High School's production of Hello Dolly using period items from our collection. Around the time of the "Blast from the Past" car show, we did an auto-related theme, and then we showcased a mixed collection of items and celebrated the Delaware County Fair and the Little Brown Jug. Most recently, in October, the President Hayes items were placed to commemorate the 197th Birthday of President Hayes. We are trying to present a different theme each month to promote the Society and it seems to be working. Brent Carson, Maggie Webb and Benny Shoults are the team members making sure to keep up on changing the window displays each month, usually for Downtown Delaware's First Friday. This is a great outreach program that puts the Society in the public eye in a way that promotes the Society and the Hair Studio. If you walk by be sure to take a look and take a minute to tell someone in the Hair Studio "thank you."

Featured Item: C.F. Graff Trade Card

In each issue of the newsletter, we feature an item contained in the Society's collection. In this issue, we are featuring a trade card which was distributed by C.F. Graff, a manufacturer and dealer of boots and shoes in Delaware, Ohio. According to the 1900 census, Christopher Graff immigrated to the United States from Germany in 1853. The business appears in the Delaware City Directory in 1880 at 49 N. Sandusky St. and in 1890 at 51 N. Sandusky St. In 1901 and 1908-09, the business is listed as Graff Shoes and Graff Bros. at 51 N. Sandusky.

Trade cards became popular in London in the early 17th century. They were an early form of the modern business card that is known today, and they were used for advertising and also as maps which directed customers to their stores. With the development of color printing, some businesses began to make more intricate and aesthetically pleasing designs, such as the design seen on the C.F. Graff card. As the designs became more attractive and colorful, collecting trade cards became a popular hobby in the late 19th century, since color images were not yet widely available.

Project To Make Archives More Accessible

been stored in brown accordion folders which are acidic and contribute to the deterioration of the papers stored in them. During this process, volunteers read through the collection to determine the extent in years of the specific collection, the individuals involved in creating the collection and/or mentioned in the collection, and the type and purpose of the papers. For example, the papers may be personal correspondence, business records, memorabilia, or personal diaries.

After analyzing the content of the collection and keeping it in order to the extent possible, the volunteers are replacing the metal paper clips with plastic clips, and removing staples and replacing them with plastic clips. Very acidic documents are placed in polyester envelopes. Each collection is then rehoused in acid-neutral boxes.

During this process, one item from each collection is being scanned to be stored electronically. At this time, the Society does not have enough resources to scan every item in these collections, but we are collecting metadata from each collection. The metadata and scanned examples will be available through the Society's webpage using our PastPerfect software and databases, possibly starting as early as late November.

The Delaware County materials that are being processed as part of this project include personal, business and organizational records, most of which are from the 19th and 20th Century. The work on this project is to be completed by December 31, 2013. Particularly interesting collections will be reported in future issues of this newsletter.

Society volunteers began working on the project in April and have thus far organized and cataloged more than 20 archive collections. Examples of collections processed include the following:

- The papers of Marcus Curtiss (1780-1868), who was the innkeeper and early Postmaster of Genoa Township. The collection includes loose books, a box of newspapers of the day and box of documents which include correspondence, materials about his position of postmaster, a day book relating to the general store and articles about the Curtiss Inn.

- Delaware High School Memorabilia, including Commencement programs from 1890 through 1921, Alumni Association Dinner programs from 1894-1901 and the documentation of the class of 1908's 50th class reunion in 1958.

- Receipts related to the Union Grocery, Balthausen Brothers, proprietors, from 1913. The receipts are primarily from local businesses and give a view of what was purchased to supply the store.

- Shur Archive of 15 daybooks recording the daily activity of the S.P. Shur Company in Delaware from 1854-1881, incomplete.

- The Tippet papers which consist primarily of the records regarding Mr. John Tippet's lawsuit against Universal Film Corporation in 1938, which requested the court to order Universal to permit Mr. Tippet to look at Universal Film Corporation's books. John Tippet owned the Trans-Atlantic Film Company, a British company, in 1917; Mr. Tippet retired to Delaware and is buried in Oak Grove Cemetery.

- Records and ledgers of the Pierce Family of Galena, including records and ledgers of the South Berlin Presbyterian Church.

- E.J. Fitchhorn papers -- Mr. Fitchhorn was bandmaster in the Delaware City Schools from 1928 to 1938. On July 11, 1939, Fitchhorn received a design patent for "Design for a Musical Instrument of a Flute-Like Nature," which was called a song flute and was manufactured by Fitchhorn and later by Conn-Selmer.

- The archives of the Delaware Business Girls Club, Shakespeare Club of Delaware, Fortnightly Club, Cosmopolitan Club, and Delaware Mental Health Association.

- The personal diaries dating between 1861-1891 of Aaron J. Lyon and his wife Olive. Reverend A.J. Lyon was a minister in the Methodist Church, treasurer of Ohio Wesleyan University, and President of the Delaware Electric Light Heat and Power Company.
